

Master's Thesis/Ph.D. Dissertation Agreement

Adams State University is in the planning process of hosting a digital repository for unique digital works, including digital theses. This repository would be open access and the works held by it would be available to all with internet access.

Adams State University requests that the authors of these theses and dissertations allow Adams State the right to copy and make available these works through both physical and digital outlets. Adams State University does not plan to use the materials for monetary gain, but endeavors to promote the intellectual output of its constituents.

Full copyright remains with the author of the theses or dissertation as granted under United States Copyright law.

If the author wishes to delay access to including his or her publication in the digital repository, the author may fill out a Request for Withholding of Thesis/Dissertation along with this form.
