The library preserves and provides access to your thesis in these ways:

- The digital full-text version of each thesis is available to members of the current Colorado Christian University community when the thesis is deposited in the CCU Library Digital Repository, our web based, open access compliant institutional repository for CCU-produced digital content. It is a permanent archive.
- The digital full-text version of your thesis may be made available globally via the CCU Library Digital Repository to better serve the scholarly community.

Your thesis is discoverable in two ways:

- Every thesis is cataloged (or described) in our Library Catalog. A search in the CCU Library Catalog, as well as in WorldCat, will describe and indicate that your thesis exists. A link to the digital copy record is included there, as well. These descriptions are discoverable via Google Scholar.
- Every thesis deposited in CCU Library's Digital Repository is assigned metadata that are searchable using any Internet search engine. Metadata may include title, author, abstract, and subject headings.

When your thesis is archived in the CCU Library Digital Repository, your copyright protects against unauthorized use of the content.

Although you have certain rights and privileges with your copyright, there are also responsibilities (see reverse).

Please review the following statements and identify that you have read them by signing below. A notice that this form exists will be included in the Digital Repository.

Circle number and sign for the access level option desired:

1. [Open Access] I have read the above statement and agree to make my thesis available to the CCU community and to the global scholarly community in our permanent digital archive, the CCU Library Digital Repository.
